FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Kentico Partners with Learning Academy Systems to Power E-Learning

Nashua, New Hampshire, USA, July 18, 2012 – Kentico Software (http://www.kentico.com), the Web content management system vendor, announced today its partnership with Learning Academy Systems in their delivery of the CDP Academy, a learning management system built on Kentico CMS for ASP.NET.

The CPD Academy from Learning Academy Systems – a sister company of Kentico Gold Partner Tellonline – is a complete and scalable learning management system (LMS) built for organizations in their delivery of CPD (continuing professional development) e-learning. Providing its clients with all necessary tools to create their own training platform, including user management, course structure and overview, shared learning resources, community and collaboration, workflow and supervision of progress, the CPD Academy also offers full customization for highly specific requirements.

"Learning Academy Systems has truly leveraged the capabilities that Kentico CMS has to offer in creating this superb tool for the management and undertaking of training within organizations," says Petr Palas, CEO and founder of Kentico Software, "The ease of use and flexibility of our powerful solution is handed directly to the end user in their employment of the CPD Academy LMS, making the creation of personalized training plans accessible to all."

The highly intuitive Kentico CMS Desk administration interface allows creation and management of learning content, complex course structures and training plans, and offers trainees access to numerous resources, like wikis, blogs, forums, messaging, file-sharing and much more. Its framework ensures a straightforward set up, with the custom-built learning management modules of the CPD Academy allowing for a comprehensive range of functionality and delivering an impressive e-learning experience.

"CPD Academy is born out of our years of work in e-learning, much of this using the Kentico CMS as a foundation. Having this powerful CMS with a range of integrated collaboration tools to build on is fantastic," says Roman Maeschi, Marketing Manager of Tellonline, "We have been able to focus on developing the course management, test creator and training plan systems and making the CPD Academy both simple and engaging. CPD Academy is a learning environment linking tests, courses, training media and collaboration to provide a 360 degree learning experience".
